Carers' Experiences

"I hadn't realised how much caring was affecting my mental health"

"At school it is sometimes hard to concentrate. I can't really talk about it with my friends because they don't really understand what it is like being a carer."

"I became a carer overnight, when my son Paul was born with severe brain damage."

"It's true that we miss out on a lot because of the caring responsibilities; we can't leave her (daughter) out. Our local carers' centre has been wonderful support and I can't praise them enough. They have given both emotional and practical help."

"Ronnie a carer does not have the opportunity to go out much, which inevitably impacts on his own health. He admits being in one place all the time can be depressing. It can be claustrophobic."
